

We have some very important choices to make this year. This is a Presidential election year. Repeatedly we are hearing that we will have to choose between Joe Biden and Donald Trump. But there is a much more important choice for us to make. It is the choice between Jesus or someone else.

We hear the Apostle Andrew making this choice in today's Gospel.

John the Baptist is pointing out to Andrew and his companion the Lamb of God, the Lamb who would be slaughtered for our salvation, he who takes away the sins of the world. He is also described as Rabbi, Teacher, Messiah.

As this new year begins Jesus is asking us the same question that he asked Andrew "What are you looking for? And then Jesus invites Andrew and his companion, "Come and see".

Today Jesus invites you, "Come and see"!

St. Augustine assures us "You have made us for yourself O God, and our hearts are restless until they rest in Thee".

The restless we experience is God's gift to us. He is the searcher of our hearts. He is the hound of heaven.

He is searching for you and me. Search for Jesus in prayer. You will find him in Holy Communion.

Jesus invites us, "Come and see".

Our hearts are restless until they rest in Jesus.
